The Women's War (The Mountain Women Series Book 4)

Synopsis

In 1918, Winkler explodes from a community of 13 helpful souls to a crowded coal mining town of strangers with divided loyalties. War in faraway Europe means more money in the pockets of May Rose and her friends, but as a new wife and mother she feels cut off from people and community events. And though mine owners like her husband are making money hand over fist, the workers' poverty and resentment threaten trouble when the war ends. Before that happens, the town will be struck by an epidemic, and May Rose and the women who've helped each other through desperate times will face challenges as divisive and deadly as war.

Customer Reviews

This series is one of the best I have read, and there have been hundreds. As I said in my last review I would love to see a TV series of these hard working loveable families! I, as others have stated, would appreciate another couple of books in this series.

Wonderful! The whole Carol Ervin series of the story of May Rose story, family & friends kept my interest. I couldn't wait to start the next book. I'm looking forward to reading Ridgetop.

Read all four books of the series. i really enjoyed the characters. The descriptions of the town and lives really rang true. The books are great for light reading.

The characters were very likeable. I liked the day to day activities. They really described a lifestyle unlike anything in my experience.

I love all four books in this series. Once I began to read, I couldn't put it down. I am hoping there will be a fifth in this series.

Good series fluidly written, with enough historical connection to make it feel plausible and keep you coming back for more!
