Advances In Veterinary Dermatology: Proceedings Of The 2nd World Congress Of Veterinary Dermatology, Montreal 1992

Synopsis

The symposia, featuring lectures plus supporting papers, explore five main themes: the skin as an immunologic organ; keratinization abnormalities; parasitic skin diseases; neoplasia and pseudoneoplasia and connective tissue and autoimmune skin diseases. The peer-reviewed and edited papers collected in this volume are written by authorities in veterinary dermatology from various parts of the world and provide current information relating to dermatological problems that are seen in practice. Workshop reports reflect the discussions of topics of major current interest.
